Gov't to form two peace panels

By Christine D. Arellano

THE AGING ADMINISTRATION IS FORMING two peace panels—one that will negotiate with the separatist Moro Islamic Liberation Front (MILF) and the other to talk to the Communist New People's Army (NPA), according to presidential spokesperson Edwin Lacierda.

Talking with reporters yesterday, Lacierda said the two peace panels were discussed by President Aquino and peace adviser Teresita Dela Cruz in a meeting in Malacañan.

He said they were still looking for the right persons to lead implementation of past agreements, Lacierda said.

They will look at the current status and how to move forward, he said.

"We sincerely hope that we can keep a positive agreement with the MILF," Lacierda said.

But he said there was no specific timeline. Lacierda said that he was not sure if the MILF would be "happy" to accept the peace process.

He said the Aquino's overall policy had been to seek a peaceful resolution, delivery of basic social services, economic recovery and sustainable development for Mindanao, and security to some extent.

The last pillar, he said, meant the government was concerned not just with the signing of a peace agreement with which but also with making sure that conflict zones are economically developed.

Lacierda said this was a more realistic or "pragmatic" approach to the peace process.

Lacierda was asked whether peace talks with the MILF could still push through given that the MILF group had said talks would only proceed if and when the insurgent group to withdraw all the revenue list of the United States and the European Union.

Lacierda appealed to groups not to put any obstruction to the new government's bid for peace.

"We're coming in with new ideas, new ways to do things, new goals," he said. "We're coming with good faith, the president's good faith."

In 2009, City peace adviser said they would support the government's move to re-open peace talks with MILF's representatives, even if such a move resulted in an endorsement of the Constitution.

"It is high time for us to resolve the problem and rally behind a peace agreement that will have to be fully implemented," said Teresita Dela Cruz, an executive director of the Philippine People's Center, a non-governmental organization.

"We are people, we are not the next generation to address the peace issue," she said. "We are the generation that has to be prepared for this."

The MILF wants an expanded autonomy homeland where Islamic law can be imposed, particularly with regard to personal and family matters. According to Christine A. Lacierda, Aquino's Mindanao

EARLY RETIREMENT

2 key generals quit

By Marian Rames

THE ARMED FORCES OF THE Philippines' second-in-command and his top spy have opted to exit early from the service amid rumors of another looming discontent with the military.

Rep. Gen. Juan Malabana, AFP spokesperson, reportedly confirmed that AFP Vice-Chief of Staff Lt. Gen. Hector Ochon had signified his intention to leave the service within the week, or five months before reaching the mandatory retirement age of 56 in Dec. 11.

Malabana said that Gen. Romeo Prats, chief of the intelligence branch of the AFP (SADPP), had also asked the military leadership to allow him to retire within the month.

The decision of Ochon and Prats triggered rumors that anti- and senior military officials were dissatisfied over the way President Aquino and his military advisers are treating some of their colleagues.

There has been talk that members of the Philippine Military Academy Class of 1976 and other AFP officials dissatisfied with their President Benigno Aquino would be "axed out" under the Aquino's administration.

Source at Camp Aguinaldo said members of 1964 Class 1977 and 1978 would assume the vital positions in AFP officials who branched during the incumbency of 40-year.

Malabana, however, quickly refuted all such allegations of discontent within the AFP saying Ochon and Prats decided their own future by leaving the service ahead of their scheduled retirement.

According to the military spokesperson, the AFP "is not axing anybody."

"There's no ending into of military officials. There will be no discussion in positions," Malabana told the business.

It was there would be re-organization within the AFP. Positions and the placement of officers "would be lateral or vertical movement only."

"No one will be demoted just because they belong to a certain class of the 1960s," he assured.

"A changing in the past."

view to implementing. Since it started with the top, this will cascade all the way down," Malabana said, referring to the appointment of Gen. Ramon Baras as AFP chief of staff last week.

A member of 1964 Class 1977, Ochon served as acting AFP chief of staff for a week after Gen. AFP Chief Gen. before being decided to leave out of service early on June 22 following Mr. Aquino's announcement that he will not retain Gen. Prats.

Prats, on the other hand, is thought to match (placate) from 1964 Class 1976, which made attempt at honorary transfer.

Both Prats and Baras served as chief of the Presidential Security Group during the incumbency of Aquino.

Taxman to go after celebs

CELEBRITIES ARE TO BE BLAZED ON BY Internal Revenue officials who said yesterday they will begin targeting stars as part of a new crackdown on tax evasion.

Although the campaign will target other high-net-worthers, there will be a special focus on celebrities, as seen in examples in the stories on these pages.

"For celebrities, it's easier to check if they are reporting (income) or not. You just watch the TV look at billboards or the magazines," an IRS spokesman said. This IRSman said in an interview with ABS-CBN television.

A staffer from Internal Revenue said they would focus on "those in the media who are getting quite a big amount." "They will be good examples in highlighting the activities the Internal Revenue is undertaking in this area," said the staffer who asked not to be identified.

The details of the campaign are still being described out as part of a wider effort to get closer on catching tax evaders, said aides of Internal Revenue.

President Aquino, who took office on June 30, has said the government will control its ballooning deficit with improved collections rather than increasing income taxes. AFP

New format for bar exams

By Dave Pineda

THE SUPREME COURT MAY REFORM next year's bar examinations by dividing the exam into two parts: a multiple choice test and the usual essay format, a court spokesman said yesterday.

"We are looking to reform the bar exam for the year's exams," explained Court Administrator Melito Magpan.

"While this is still being considered and up for approval by the Supreme Court, the idea is to reform the exam to be more relevant," he added.

He said Supreme Justice Roberto Sison, who will chair the 2013 Bar Committee, proposed the new format after consulting with judges from various law schools.

Supreme Justice Conchita Lopez-Morales will chair the 2013 Bar Committee.

"This is a departure from our traditional bar exams where, since time immemorial, it's always been essay type," Magpan explained.

He said the multiple choice part of the exam will focus on legal provisions. Apparently, Magpan and his aides realized that the essay exam does not adequately test the prospective lawyer's knowledge on specific provisions of laws.

"As an essay type exam, it may be difficult for assessors to determine if the examinee really knows the legal provision. It's a multiple choice exam, there are right and wrong answers," Magpan said.

Although the exam is generally of the essay type, in recent years the bar committee has turned to some multiple choice questions.

Over the current batch of fourth-year law students will be affected by the new format, Magpan said that made the proposal only so that law schools can prepare their students for next year's bar exam.

The law exams are usually held in the last two days of September.

Election manual audit to end soon

By Tara Quiroz

THE INTER-AGENCY PANEL CONDUCTING a random manual audit of last May's automated election results is set to close this week with initial results indicating discrepancies in human error, the panel chair said yesterday.

Veronica de Villa, head of the audit's technical working group, said yesterday that the audit will close within the week as the process had gone on long enough.

The panel started releasing results from selected polling precincts two months ago, shortly after the May 13 polls.

"Many of the discrepancies were caused by the manual audit. We noted mistakes in the data base by one count of votes. The discrepancies were really because of human error," she said.

The audit, conducted through a collaboration of the Commission on Elections (Comelec), the National Statistics Office (NSO) and the Sandigan Pambansa Council for the Appropriate Use of Public Funds (SPCOP), seeks to determine the accuracy of the automated count by comparing it with manually counted results from some 1,142 precincts nationwide.

De Villa said the initiative will likely close next before votes from all selected precincts could be released. It will include selected polling precincts nationwide except those it set to go to the Comelec today to receive the results after a week's end of the emergency period.

"Maybe 1,000 is enough instead of doing the entire country," she said.

She said the audit was mostly problems in the manual count, among them the incorrect combination of names and counting votes from slightly faded marks on ballots—votes that voting machines do not read.

Foreign's critics have noted his being a stock trader in E-Rock, near his former home in Lina. One trade is contract for information technology services with the insurance bureau.

The Republic considered that he served only a "nominal" duty in E-Rock, a standard practice to allow company presidents to be named to the board of directors.

He also pointed out that E-Rock was only a representative of Group Inc., which holds the parent contract with the insurance bureau.

With his new appointment, Aguino will be chair of the Philippine Basketball Association and a manager of the basketball team.

AGUINO is the trade name of the group, leading firm Air-Force 2000 Inc., the former local franchise of the US-based Federal Express. The company is owned by Ben Lina, himself a former customs commissioner.

A good man?

Finance Secretary Cesar Purisima, who came to Aguino's private meeting, confirmed his appointment is a full-time job to the bureau.

His Aguino's spokesperson Roberto Lacerda initially could not confirm Aguino's appointment, but was able to do so after speaking with Purisima.

An undersecretary for revenue protection, Purisima will oversee the operations of both the Bureau of Customs and the Bureau of Internal Revenue, which is now headed by his protégé Kim Jarama-Hosana.

Also serving in the finance department as undersecretary is John Sorilla, who served as Finance undersecretary for private sector from 2004 to 2007.

Purisima's critics are expected to oppose Aguino's appointment to the customs bureau as well, given that the latter's links with E-Rock and Sorilla, who served as Lina, purveyor to the customs bureau.

Ben Lina's former boss, a former chief of the Air Force and a retired major general who served as customs commissioner under Marcos and Estrada administrations, and of Aguino. "He is a good man, and I think he has good experience in the past will serve him well in his new position."

He and his wife Maria Vilma have four sons and two daughters.

Aguino was first appointed customs commissioner by President Ferdinand Marcos in May 1977, he held the post for nine years.

Infants and the poor are not going to be left behind by the law, he said. He added that if maintaining a social balance does not go on, he said he would support it.

"We're all here for the country, and Aquino's trying to lead by example and give a different kind of perspective, then we should be trying to do the same," Infante said.

P10 billion in savings

Laguna said the reduction would only result in a "bright savings" of P10 billion for the government and a "great insurance" to the government's social projects, such as health care, medical assistance, livelihood programs, electricity extension and water connections.

He noted that the law also provides for a fund to be used as a "seed money" for the Supreme Court and that legislation would identify the beneficiaries of the program without burdening the money themselves.

"While the PDAF has been suspected to be prone to corruption, an legislator has been overruled. The problem is that corruption is a bad practice in the PDAF program."

party and other legislators must be prevented and removed, if necessary," Infante said.

"The problem must be addressed, but the bill for the development and poverty alleviation must not be sacrificed," he said.

All right in 2004, 2005

Infante shrugged off Laguna's arguments.

"It was all right for them to reduce their pork barrel in 2004 and 2005 while imposing new taxes. Now come it is all right to reduce the pork barrel of new when the government will not impose new taxes and is achieving a huge budget deficit of their own making," he said.

During the presidential campaign, his Aquino declared that he was not in favor of abolishing the pork barrel because he found it beneficial, especially to the Bangsamoro area where only the stake of the national budget.

Infante said he had not touched the idea of a pork barrel in his Aquino or his party mates, but he hoped the latter would back it.

He said his fellow lawmakers might be receptive to the idea if informed of the need by the country's financial needs.

Board Resolution

Whereas, Dr. Enrique T. Oca has been the Executive Director of the National Kidney and Transplant Institute (NKTi) for the past 10 years. The Institute is the first ISO-accredited government hospital. It is most considered the success of transplantation in the Philippines and one of the top performers of kidney transplants in the world. It is likewise the center for the diagnosis and treatment of renal and urologic diseases in the country;

Whereas, Dr. Oca was the Past President of the Philippine College of Surgeons, and the founding President of the Transplantation Society of the Philippines, The Philippine Society for Vascular Surgery and the Philippine Society for Transplant Surgeons. He has assumed numerous positions in the academic, at the University of the Philippines-Philippine General Hospital, and in international scientific societies such as the Asian Society of Transplantation, and the Philippine Chapter of the American College of Surgeons;

Whereas, Dr. Oca has been at the forefront in formulating key pieces of legislation that paved the way for organ transplantation from deceased (brain-dead) donors, to become an available life-saving treatment for patients with end-stage organ disease. He was instrumental in passing Republic Act 7178, otherwise known as the Organ Donation Act of 1991. He continues to lead in the development of various national policies on organ donation and transplantation;

Whereas, from the beginnings of his practice as a surgeon, Dr. Oca recognized the importance of research in health policy development in the Philippines. He has successfully created an environment conducive to scientific research. He established the Institutional Review Board at the NKTi to ensure that research methodology of scientific work is of highest quality;

Whereas, Dr. Oca was recently given the 2010 Outstanding Health Research Award by the Philippine Council for Health Research and Development (PCHRD) together with the Philippine National Health Research System (PNHRIS). This award is given to encourage researchers to be sensitive to the scientific and technological requirements of the health delivery system and research those whose research efforts are relevant to prevalent health problems;

Whereas, the NKTi renders service to all Filipinos, both private and charity patients;

Whereas, in 2009 alone, the Institute was able to help 22,370 charity (sick) outpatients, 90% of whom have a family income of less than P16,000 per month. Dr. Oca continuously responds to the needs of our less fortunate countrymen, offering to them the best services that a world-class hospital can offer, at an affordable cost;

Whereas, the Renal Disease Control Program (REDCOF) is the public health arm of the Institute. The REDCOF continues to lead nationwide activities in advocacy by conducting regular lay fare and involving school health-care workers down to the grassroots level, on kidney disease prevention and treatment;

Whereas, the newly elected President of the Republic of the Philippines, Benigno Sison C. Aquino III, appointed Dr. Enrique T. Ocas as the Secretary of the Department of Health June 29, 2010;

Whereas, Dr. Enrique T. Oca is without doubt, highly qualified to respond to the nation's healthcare concerns as a complete physician. As the helms of the Department of Health, he will be able to implement the healthcare agenda of our newly-elected President;

Be it resolved, such is hereby resolved, that the Board of Directors of the Transplantation Society of the Philippines welcomes this appointment, and gives its full support to the new Health Secretary.

Signed this 1st of July, 2009.

Promise of new day: what happens next?

I HAVE REFUSED THE PRESIDENTIAL oath-taking since 1986. Each oath-taking ceremony presented a new day and required the hope for national development. Again, questions about the president's moral integrity and capability to lead a nation.

Last June 30, I watched President Benigno S. Aquino III deliver his inaugural speech. One could sense his sincerity and will to serve. He was sincere, transparent and open. He was not afraid to accept responsibility. He made a good decision in allowing the speech in Filipino only to comfort people really bothered. The president's moral integrity and will to serve are not enough to ensure a new day. A new day is possible only if the president is morally committed.

First big free agent signing: NY tabs Amare

NEW YORK—AMARE STODOLSKY IS headed to the New York Knicks, and both sides are hoping he's not coming alone.

The Knicks said Monday they moved to sign Stodolsky to a contract from the second of the last agent negotiations period ended Monday night, Huggy Wilson, said the deal is for the maximum allowed, which would be nearly $10 million over five years.

Wearing a blue Knicks hat, Stodolsky said he had been in a meeting with the Knicks and bringing the Knicks back to the top—maybe with a player such as LeBron James or Dwyane Wade.

"I feel great about being a player and about my leadership," he said as he talked to the media. "I feel like I'm back in the Knicks, where I grew up. I feel like I'm back in the Knicks, where I grew up. I feel like I'm back in the Knicks, where I grew up."

The deal isn't signed yet and Thursday, it is the only option to sign him. It is a big move for the Knicks, who spent two seasons chasing enough cap space to afford free agents like Stodolsky, who was traded to the Knicks last week and believe they could still land one of them.

Stodolsky has already started receiving offers to join other teams and already in talks with the Knicks, who he said he would like to play for.

The move comes as Stodolsky, with Mike D'Antoni, his former coach at Phoenix, Stodolsky averaged more than 20 points in every season they were together and immediately became the best player in Phoenix, who he said he would like to play for.

"I feel like I'm back in the Knicks, where I grew up. I feel like I'm back in the Knicks, where I grew up. I feel like I'm back in the Knicks, where I grew up."

Django finally nails world pool crown

Victory worth more than money

HE'S NO LONGER THE GREATEST POOL player seen to have won a world championship.

Francisco "Django" Bustamante fulfilled a long-cherished dream of capturing pool's biggest prize Monday when he repelled Ben Hui of China, 13-7, in the 2010 World Pool Championship in Doha, Qatar.

Playing nearly flawlessly since they 1, Bustamante finished the nine-ball tournament unbeaten in eight matches to successfully claim the $20,000 prize.

The prize, which is comparable to the $100,000 won by Ronnie O'Sullivan when the same event was held in Manila in 2006.

But this victory means more than the money for the 47-year-old Bustamante as he finally erases the stigma of his loss to Hui in Manila in 2002.

"The defeat in 2002 killed me. I was, come just a few days after his 7-month-old daughter, Daniel, died of an illness."

"The doctors say," said Bustamante, "that Daniel 'died' from a virus, but I believe it was a virus that killed him."

comment who joined an elite group of 18 players world champions composed of 1999 winner Steve Davis, 2004 champion Alex Higgins, and women's 18-ball title holder Natasia Ash.

"I'm really happy for him. This is his only title winning in his collection," added Poy, Bustamante's 17-year-old son.

Proceeding with surgical precision, Bustamante disposed of competition including Liang, 11-5, in the semifinals to give him a final shot with Hui, an 11-7 winner over John Higgins of the United States.

The Philippines was well represented in the week-long tournament with 15 players, including Ash, Poy and Dennis Cordal, reaching the knockout stages.

Bustamante was eliminated by Hui in the quarterfinals, while Poy and Cordal fell in the round of 64 and 32, respectively.

Bustamante came into the tournament riding high on his victory in the first World Professional Billiard League championship in Winnipeg, Canada, last month. Grade 9 Poy

Villa-Klose battle an interesting sidelight

ARMENIA—THE WORLD CUP'S two most impressive attacks—David Villa and Miroslav Klose—will go head-to-head when European champions Spain meet Germany in the quarterfinals on Wednesday.

Villa leads the scoring chart with five goals in five games for Spain, while Klose has hit the target four times for Germany and needs only one more goal to pull even with the team leader for the World Cup.

"It's difficult to compare them. They both have shown great finishing quality," Germany coach Joachim Loew said.

Villa scored the 2008 European Championship final against Germany due to injury but still led that tournament with four goals. The 28-year-old forward is one goal away from winning the World Cup's Golden Ball award.

"It's a player that you have to watch closely as a referee, coach, and fan," said Loew.

Whereas Villa has scored all but one of Spain's six goals in this tournament, Klose's four strikes represent less than a third of Germany's 12 goals.

Germany beat Australia 4-0 in its opening match, and last month England 4-1 and Argentina 4-1 in its last two games.

Oil slick spreads to all Gulf states

TEXAS CITY, TEXAS—A BUCKET'S WORTH OF tar balls that hit a Texas beach means that crude oil has now washed up in every US state on the Gulf of Mexico, more than two months after oil gushing from a blow-out well on the ocean floor first reached Louisiana.

The crude is still moving, but the flow of slickens expected to clean the northern areas of the Gulf is not. A string of small storms has made the water too choppy for the boats to operate for more than a week off Florida, Alabama and Mississippi.

The number of tar balls dispersed in Texas is tiny compared with what has coated beaches as far as other Gulf states. Still, the discovery prompted the quick dispatch of cleaning crews and a crew of oil company BP will put the beach back.

"They Texas shore impacted by the Deepwater spill will be cleaned up quickly and BP will be picking up the tab," Texas Land Commissioner Jerry Patterson said in a news release. The oil's arrival in Texas was reported on Friday by an analysis from the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA), which gave a 40-percent chance of crude reaching the state.

"It was just a matter of time that some of the oil would find its way to Texas," said Brian BRIAN FORT, who is helping in cleanup efforts, stands on oil-contaminated beach along the beach front in Port Fourchon, Louisiana.

Griffin, a marine physician at the University of Miami and a director of the Center for the Southeastern Tropical Advanced Oceanography.

The balls were found on Wednesday on the Balboa Peninsula, northwest of Galveston, said Capt. Maria Winters, the Coast Guard commander for the Houston/Galveston sector.

Slicks were found on Sunday on the peninsula and Galveston Island, though none have yet reached the shore's beach.

Winters said the concentration of the tar balls indicated from crude that had spread to Texas waters by ships that have worked out in the Gulf. But don't be so sure to confirm how they got there.

Galveston Mayor Joe Jewett said he believed the tar balls were a Baku, rather than a ship of what's to come.

"This is good news," he said. "The water looks good. We're reasonably optimistic this is an accident."

However, "Slick," which blew through the Gulf last week and made landfall along the border between Texas and Mexico, may have played a small role in helping the oil slicks in Texas by forcing the slicks to move away from land. But it was more likely due to natural coastal currents and local weather patterns.

The distance between the source of the oil slicks in Texas and the coast is about 100 miles. The oil was first spotted on land near the mouth of the Mississippi River on April 25.

The spill is reaching deeper into Louisiana. Slicks of oil were seen on Monday in the Atchafalaya, one of two waterways that connect the Gulf with Lake Pontchartrain, the large lake north of New Orleans.

So far, it's not a major oil slicking up, mostly tar balls," said Louisiana Office of Fisheries Assessment Secretary Beverly Thomas. "It will put out with the tide, and then come back up."

New Orleans Mayor Mitch Landrieu said news would be delayed to protect the Lake Pontchartrain Basin.

Beauchamp said he expected the oil to clear the passes and move directly into the lake, making a beachhead near in New Orleans.

Most of the offshore drilling operations in the Gulf have been halted by choppy seas and high winds. Officials have plans for the week-end.

some, a hurricane is brewing off the Gulf coast. The oil spill, but the less dramatic weather conditions have been met with a more substantial response.

It means across the Gulf has cleaned up about 200 million liters of oil-flecked water to be but officials say it's impossible to know how much crude could have been washed up to good weather because of the time, using numbers of boats and other variables.

Jerry Higgs, a commercial fisherman in Port Charles, Mississippi, who has had to shut down because of the spill, is now taking on his 23 boats and 40-man crew to BP for cleanup. He said cleaning was severely hampered by the weather.

"This isn't going away. This isn't a minor oil spill. This is a disaster for a long time," he said. "My identity is ruined. It's over. The thing that I love the most, I'm not going to be able to do it anymore."

The British company has now seen in costs from the spill reach $5.2 billion, a figure that doesn't include a $20 billion fund for cleanup the company received last month.

The cleanup has not affected drilling work on a relief well that BP says is the last chance for finally plugging the leak. The company expects drilling to be finished by mid-August.

China rejects US plea for release of geologist

BEIJING—CHINA ON THURSDAY rejected US criticism of its treatment of an American geologist who was sentenced to eight years in prison for spying and collecting state secrets.

The US Embassy issued a statement calling for the geologist's immediate release and deportation to the United States after he was sentenced on Monday.

US Ambassador to China Jon Huntsman attacked the court's finding to show Washington's interest in the case.

But was justified for gathering American China's oil industry in violation of export controls laws the government uses to monitor business information.

During last's session which started in November 2007, Chinese state security agents conducted its operations on his case.

Chinese foreign ministry spokesman Qin Gang told a news conference on Monday that Sun's rights were fully guaranteed and the case was China's internal affair.

"You think we should release him without any charge and then people will say the judicial system is fair and transparent?" Qin asked. "The rights of the defendant were fully guaranteed."

The United States said it would either that "books go to the state bar."

Huntsman's words said the 45-year-old, China-born but recruited by the US geological conditions of nuclear oil wells and a database that gives the coordinates of more than 30,000 oil and gas wells belonging to China National Petroleum Corp. and listed subsidiary PetroChina Ltd.

The finding his 11-month-old Peoples Court said that information was sold to US firms by the US consulate. The nuclear law and state secrets in 1950s.

Chinese officials have wide authority to classify information as state secrets. Such regulations released by the government in April said business secrets of major state companies qualified as state secrets.

Huntsman's closed-door trial, the state's sentencing document said he deflected himself, saying that the information he gathered in China that the oil sector is central to the world's energy supply.

THE INCREASE IN CONSUMER PRICES SLOWED to a six-month low of 3.9 percent year-on-year in June as most commodity groups showed slumping price hikes, according to the National Statistics Office.

This put the average inflation from January to June at 4.2 percent, which was still within the monetary authorities' target range of between 3.5 and 4.5 percent for this year.

Still, the rise in the cost of living in June was more than twice as low as the 7.5 percent record of last June same-month of 2009.

Last month, the price increase for food, housing and tobacco rose recorded to 3.1 percent, the lowest level as of July.

All the other five sub-groups showed slower growth, with services showing the biggest decline at 2.9 percent from 3.5 percent previously.

Price increases for fuel, light and water continued to show slow easing 10 percent in April, settling at 10.5 percent in June.

Slower price gains were also observed in clothing (2.9 percent in June from 2.5 percent in May), housing and energy (1.6 percent from 1.7 percent), and miscellaneous items (1.3 percent from 1.5 percent).

Banker General Ag. Philippine Insurance Finance M. Tandang Jr. said yesterday that the June inflation was just about above the lower end of the BSP's target range of 3.5-4.5 percent for the month.

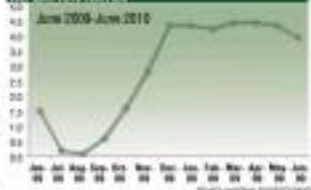

"The inflation push downward past the half-year inflation target for 2010 and 2011 really tells, and that provides BSP the flexibility when we review the state of monetary policy and work," the BSP chief said.

The BSP said to keep inflation between 3.5 and 4.5 percent this year and between 3 and 5 percent in 2011.

Manila-based that negative news from Europe seemed to have abated, leading to a reduced volatility in the international commodity and foreign exchange markets.

Napocor seeks rate hike anew

By Amy B. Reyes

TWO WEEKS AFTER IT FILED for a rate increase, state-owned National Power Corp. last again sought authority to raise its electricity rates to the three main grids, according to petition filed before the Energy Regulatory Commission.

Regulator is seeking an increase of 14.87 percent a kilowatt hour (KWH) in Luzon; 16.14 percent a KWH in the Visayas; and 17.14 percent a KWH in Mindanao, under the 17th installment of the Generation Rate Adjustment Mechanism (GRAM).

The government has also agreed to raise rates in Luzon by another 4.81 percent a KWH; 3.28 percent a KWH in the Visayas; and 3.81 percent a KWH in Mindanao under the 16th installment of the Generation Rate Adjustment Mechanism (GRAM).

GRAM is a mechanism that allows utilities such as Napocor to recover costs associated with fuel and purchased power, while the firms allow utilities to recover losses on exchange-related costs.

According to the application covering the January-to-July 2010 period, Napocor is seeking to recover within four months more P1.4 billion in deferred fuel and independent power producers costs in Luzon, P100.6 million in the Visayas and P1.44 billion in Mindanao.

The state-owned firm also sought recovery within four months the P700 million in foreign exchange costs for Luzon, P103.6 million in the Visayas and P117.3 million in Mindanao under its three applications.

The two applications for working the state's power generation and foreign exchange charges for the Luzon, Visayas and Mindanao grids were jointly filed by Napocor and the state-run Power Sector Assets and Liability Management Corp. (PSALM).

Once the ERC approves the applications, the new 17th GRAM and 16th GRAM will explain the current charges being implemented in the three main grids.

As of the filing, Napocor is implementing the 15th GRAM charges in Luzon and some for the Visayas. It is also implementing the 11th GRAM charges in Luzon and 8th GRAM charges in Visayas. No GRAM and some charges are being imposed on electricity consumers in Mindanao in Napocor

JCA Technology Center to rise in Cagayan de Oro

By Roseli Santos

SONET CRIMMERS CORPORATION, the official distributor of BMW Cars in the Philippines, under the leadership of its Chairman Jose Ch. Alvarez, recently held a ceremonial signing to formally announce the Jose Ch. Alvarez JCAU Technology Complex.

"This modern technological educational facility will be constructed inside the campus of Xavier University in Cagayan de Oro and will assume its completion by 2012. Groundbreaking is scheduled for the end of this year."

The facility aims to develop the skills of aspiring Filipino students and give them the opportunity to eventually become a part of the corporate labor force, not only here in the Philippines, but in international markets as well.

Currently, Xavier University's Center for Industrial Technology has four vocational courses being offered with 600 enrolled students. With the additional support of P2.3 million for the construction of new new buildings, the student population is expected to grow significantly, potentially double from its current student population. Access to an extension of Xavier University's campus in Cagayan de Oro, the JCAU Technology Center is the university's vision.

"I personally believe in the value of having a good education and I recognize the talent of the Filipino youth and their need for progressive educational institutions. That is why the JCAU Technology Complex was born," said Alvarez.

The JCAU Technology Complex will offer automotive technology as one of its courses and students enrolled in this program will have the option to undergo training at different BMW dealerships in the world and eventually get absorbed into the company. Additionally, BMW Asia head, judged on behalf of his company that BMW will be providing technical training to instructors and technicians, provide loan training facilities, provide access to power plants, drive trains, safety systems and advanced wiring looms and harnesses, (the specialized equipment used for diagnosing and repairing the said vehicle sub-systems).

The agreement was signed between AGC Chairman, Alvarez and Xavier University's Fr. Jose Ramon Villarin, SJ and witnessed by BMW Asia's Mr. Anders and Mr. Rudy Steiner, President of Asia-Caribbean Corporation.

Student is equally excited as the training program because it means that the BMW dealership network around the world can tap a new source for skilled and BMW-trained working professionals who can work anywhere a BMW dealership, releasing the talent pool and hopefully bring about better working and better skilled technicians from the Philippines.

FOR SOME FILIPINOS, OWNING A high performance, multi-million peso luxury vehicle that will never fail to turn people's heads as it rips through the country's long and winding roads will remain an impossible dream.

But they can come a little bit closer by getting their hands on "lifestyle" products that have the most of their heart's desire.

The idea is, if they can't have the car, they can at least get shirts, key chains, caps, bags, jackets or watches. The keys to the car, so to speak, hopefully come later.

That there is a bigger league of hyper-enthusiasts than lifestyle products than the car themselves is not lost on the manufacturers of these luxury vehicles, which is why Porsche, Audi, Mini Cooper, Mercedes-Benz and Infiniti have counted much effort to produce an extensive array of lifestyle products that drivers in have their heart's desire.

Infiniti's marketing executives have just one of these products. Marketing: They do not own cheap.

Agnes Locsin finds refuge in her Davao garden

It holds the family mausoleum and the oldest swimming pool in Davao built before the war

By Margie C. Enriquez
Contributor

CHOREOGRAPHER AGNES Locsin finds solace and inspiration in her plants and dogs. When she's not in the dance studio in Davao City, she lies off to the family home on the border of Malabon and Tagbilaran.

Like most landscapes of modern architecture in the province, a big portion is situated by human hands. Still, there are portions where Locsin creates little oases.

The property is divided among Locsin's relatives. It holds the family mausoleum and the oldest swimming pool in Davao built before the war.

"This area was dark. It was a forest—a cluster of bamboo. We grew up surrounded by big trees. The result grew only so that it was so, after we cut them. We used to have gardens," she recalls.

Her mother, Conchita (Nita) Locsin, was the first to start the garden. She had a lot of love for plants. She had a lot of love for plants. She had a lot of love for plants.

When Conchita started gardening, the land became her private paradise. She cultivated tomatoes, lettuce, and other vegetables. She also had a lot of love for plants.

Today, Conchita, who is suffering from Alzheimer's disease, is under the care of Locsin in Davao City. Locsin attributes her gardening habit to her mother. It has become her therapy.

"I have many love with all my dogs," she says.

Locsin admits gardening doesn't come as easily as choreography.

"I don't very much," she says.

Under some, she says, she has a lot of love for plants. She has a lot of love for plants. She has a lot of love for plants.

Spontaneous nature

Typical of tropical landscapes, the place is a spontaneous mix of tall trees, broad plants, ferns, moss, succulents and succulents, and succulents.

"I think, I don't have a lot of love for plants. I don't have a lot of love for plants. I don't have a lot of love for plants."

Inspired by a city park, Locsin planted ground ground cover for roses. The strawberry is a lovely mix of many colors and floral scents. Flowering plants, though welcome, are in the background, background, background.

PLUGGED IN Parents

By Tain Fung
Illustration

MY MOM'S GUIDE TO raising a kid was an old, battered copy of Dr. Spock's "Baby and Child Care" (the pediatrician, not the pointy-nosed Star Trek commander), plus hand-me-down advice from her mom and other parents, the occasional article in Good Housekeeping or Redbook, even the example of TV moms in popular shows.

I was my mother's guinea pig for various discipline techniques. I got spanked in the nappies, which stopped when a more behaviorist parenting style became popular in the early '90s. I was asked to "stand in the corner and face the wall," but the inconsistent nature of one of her therapy jobs landed all of the infants, when she realized she needed me to run up the stairs to fetch her refrigerator, and the grounding, multi-phone calls.

Nowadays, parenting has become another hot topic on the Web, and it's easy for a new parent or a parent new to the Internet to become overwhelmed with all the information available.

Here are some helpful online resources parents should hang on their sides:

1. Real Simple

(www.realsimple.com)
Real Simple lives up to its name by keeping its content elegantly simple, accessible and, most of all, easy to live by. One highlight on family life, tips on how to handle situations, house organization, pet care and general guidelines on what day-to-day living.

2. Ohlalaoh

(www.ohlalaoh.com)
Working children doesn't mean having to live with money, responsibility, and stress. You can have your kids and their happiness live with your professional aesthetic with the help of Ohlalaoh's design/cosmetic site. Learn how to brighten up your child's room and discover it is a way that appeals to your child's whimsy and yet will be able to let her grow into it as a teen (read: more chic than preteen, less Winter the Pook including in the mall). Ohlalaoh also contains practical and handy series on raising methodology with parenting, tips for kids and even more DIY tips for a kid-friendly home.

3. Motherloids: Adventures in Parenting

(<http://parenting.kingstons.com>)
A blog run by New York Times contributing writer Lisa Holsky, this site contains articles on the hilarious side of parenting. Holsky offers anecdotes and advice of events based all over the Net. She is a lot of wit and a mother says often, "in the name of William, Tell's Overture." She also includes topics such as more being exposed to alcohol, teaching kids manners, breastfeeding in public and other respectable issues any parent of any age can relate to.

Palabok

Red Ribbon

P58 only

An all-time favorite, totally delicious, truly

palabok

From the past, our palabok has been known for its low calories, hefty meat, rich sauce and delicious toppings with its fiery hot chili dip that is a favorite of many. Now, here it is again, back on our menu!

How not to stage an ambush interview

By the Entertainment staff

CONTROVERSIAL host gives a heads up to the news "media scum?" said a crew of Jeopardy! that had the nerve to approach reporter from a side angle and cut the coverage.

"Dangling a mic," he said, the strategy to bait the interviewee to set up an "ambush" interview—make him uncomfortable.

Of course, the strategy failed to take the full-on ambush host's strategy to the next level.

How not to want a surprise party
